Miku is a junior high school student from Tokyo. Last summer, she went to London for two weeks to study English. It was her first visit to the UK.

Miku stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Brown and their daughter Judy. She arrived at the Browns' house on Wednesday. That night, Mr. Brown said, "Let's have a cream tea party for Miku this Sunday." "I can make some scones!" said Mrs. Brown. "What's a cream tea party?" asked Miku. "We enjoy tea and some scones with cream and strawberry jam." said Mrs. Brown. "What's the scone?" asked Miku. "It's a small, round cake. It's like bread, made with flour, milk and butter. British people often bake it at home." said Mrs. Brown. "Can you make some Japanese food for the party, Miku?" "Sure." said Miku.

On Saturday, Miku went shopping with Mrs. Brown in the morning and bought some rice. On Sunday morning, Miku made some rice balls, and Judy helped her. In the afternoon, they had a cream tea party in the garden. Mrs. Brown made tea for everyone, and they ate the scones which she made. Miku served rice balls. Later, they walked around the garden and picked up some berries. Miku took lots of pictures. After the party, Mrs. Brown said, "I like rice balls! They're delicious." Miku was very happy.
